UCP Suffolk to Honor Longtime Supporter at Golf Classic

Hauppauge, NY (April 20, 2016) – United Cerebral Palsy Association of Greater Suffolk, Inc. (UCP Suffolk) will present its 27th Annual Golf Classic on Monday, May 9, 2016 at Glen Head Country Club in Glen Head, NY.

This year's event will honor Joseph Campolo, Managing Partner of Campolo, Middleton & McCormick, LLP. With broad experience in both commercial litigation and transactions, he advises business owners, executives, and board members on legal and business strategies.

Joseph has played major roles in numerous matters widely reported in the media, including representing a high level executive from Computer Associates before the U.S. Securities Exchange Commission and defending a national nonprofit under investigation from the New York Attorney General's Office. He has also obtained a verdict against sub-brokers on Racketeer Influenced & Corrupt Organizations claims in the Agape Ponzi scheme litigation and spearheaded several actions, finding the Metropolitan Transportation Authority payroll tax unconstitutional. He has practiced law at some of Long Island's largest firms and has served as in-house General Counsel to a national technology company, where he was promoted to president. Prior to starting his firm, Joseph served honorably in the United States Marine Corps.

Joseph is currently an Advisory Board Member of the Staller Center for the Arts at Stony Brook University and a member of the Brookhaven Business Advisory Council. Active in the community, he serves on the Board of Directors of the Hauppauge Industrial Association-Long Island (HIA-LI) and the American Red Cross on Long Island. He has been a friend and supporter of UCP Suffolk since 2012. He has been actively involved in numerous UCP Suffolk events such as the Golf Classic, the Luncheon and Fashion Show, and the Gala.

Joseph is a graduate of Stony Brook University and the Fordham University School of Law. He lives in Stony Brook and is the proud father of his daughter, Katharine.

“We are delighted to be honoring such an impressive and accomplished individual at this year's Golf Classic,” said Stephen H. Friedman, President, CEO of UCP Suffolk. “Joseph's dedication to helping people with disabilities live a life without limits makes him very deserving of this honor.”
